PREFACE

It may be of interest to make some note of the origin of the Harvard Law Library. It was necessitated by the establishment of the Law School of Harvard University in 1817. It was immediately seen that a library was essential to the success of the School, and an appropriation of $500 was made by the Corporation of Harvard College on the 5th of September, 1817, for the purchase of law books. The Corporation, at the same time, authorized the transfer of various law works from the College Library to the Law Library. In 1846 the number of books in the Library was about 12,000. Some of these volumes belonged to the College Library, and some had been deposited by the State of Massachusetts; these books were later returned. From 1846 to 1870, the growth of the Library was very slow, and, excluding a large number of text-books (duplicates) bought for the use of the students, the actual number of volumes during this period did not much exceed 10,000. In the latter year, the practice of buying text-books for the use of the students was abandoned. At the beginning of 1870, important changes went into effect, and from that time to the present, a constant and systematic attempt has been made to improve the Library in every way possible. In 1880, the collection numbered about 20,000 volumes; in 1890, a little over 25,000; in 1900, over 60,000, and at the end of the year 1908, over 111,000. Books added to the Library after Dec. 31, 1908, with the exception of a few volumes of statutes, are not included in the present catalogue.

The Library has been enriched at various times by donations. In the early years, the gifts, though infrequent, were of great importance. The first appears to have been a gift of money, namely, $100, by Mr. John Howe in 1818. Between the years 1818 and 1829 many books were given by the Hon. Christopher Gore. The catalogue of 1826 contains the titles of 119 volumes marked as having been presented by him. Quincy's "History of Harvard University" states that during Mr. Gore's lifetime he gave many important and valuable works to the Law Library. In 1829 the Hon. Nathan Dane gave ten copies (90 volumes) of his "Abridgment." The next gift of importance was the bequest of the Hon. Samuel Livermore in 1833 of his whole library of foreign law, of more than 300 costly volumes, and appraised at the inventory of his estate at $6000. It is described in Quincy's History "as a collection of rare and curious and important learning, probably not exceeded, and perhaps not equaled, by any other collection of the same size in America, if it be in Europe." About this time (1833) a considerable number of books on the civil law were presented by the Hon. Joseph Story. Between 1835 and 1870, no gifts of importance appear. In 1874 the Hon. Benjamin Robbins Curtis gave his fee of $500 paid for a course of lectures in the Law School, the money to be appropriated for the purchase of books relating to the Constitution and Laws of the United States and the Practice of the National Courts. In 1894 Frederick P. Fish, Esq., gave $300 for the purchase of books for the Library of the School. Two notable gifts were made in 1902–03, one from Mr. Edward James Drifton Coxe, the other from Mr. Learned Hand. Mr. Coxe gave the Law Library of his father, the late Brinton Coxe, consisting of 3225 volumes and 92 pamphlets. It contained many rare volumes of English, American, Roman and Canon Law, including a nearly complete set of the decisions of the " Rota Romana," and was the largest and most valuable gift of books ever received by the School. Mr. Hand gave 1421 volumes from the library of his father, the late Samuel Hand, Associate Judge of the Court of Appeals of New York. Many of the books belonged at one time to two other eminent lawyers, Esek Cowen and Nicholas Hill. In 1903 a very important gift was made by Mrs. Horace Gray, the widow of the late Mr. Justice Gray, of the U. S. Supreme Court. It consisted of the printed records of cases decided by the Supreme Court of the United States for twenty years preceding, and made 1300 large bound volumes of these rare and valuable records. By the will of the late James M. Barnard, subject to the approval of Mrs. Barnard, the Library received his law books and portraits of lawyers in 1905. An additional gift of $2000, for the purchase of books, preferably works on International Law, was made by Mrs. Barnard. In February, 1907, Mrs. Langdell gave 90 volumes of costly English Reports, which had been deposited in the Library many years earlier by the late Professor Langdell. Besides the above, the Library has been enriched by a great number of smaller donations, which cannot be enumerated here.

The first catalogue of the Harvard Law Library was issued in 1826. It contained 763 titles, which described 1752 volumes. The second catalogue was printed in 1834, and was prepared by Charles Sumner, who was then Librarian. Mr. Sumner also prepared an interesting preface to the catalogue, in which a number of the oldest and rarest works are described. In 1834 the Library contained over 3500 volumes. A second edition of this catalogue was published in 1841, the Library having increased to something over 6000 volumes. A fourth edition was published in 1846, when the number of volumes was about 12,000. From that time to the present, no printed catalogue has been issued, and the number of volumes has increased to about 111,500. The present catalogue was commenced in 1902. It contains only the books on the American and English Common Law, and is an alphabetical arrangement by authors only. Separate lists have been made for the collections of trials and peerage claims, and these lists are placed at the end of volume 2. According to the plan adopted, the catalogue will consist of three volumes, to be issued successively; the first includes the letters "A" to "L," the second, "M" to "Z," the Trials and Peerage Claims, and the third, a general index of subjects in connection with volumes 1 and 2. The subject index is in preparation and will be issued as soon as possible. The publication of a catalogue of all the books on Foreign or Continental Law is contemplated. A beginning has been made, although the work has not progressed far.

It would be interesting to attempt a description of some of the old and rare works in the Library. An inspection of the catalogue, however, will show that the Library is rich in the books of the Common Law, containing many editions of the most famous legal treatises. Every English edition of Coke's First Institute, as well as fifty or more editions of Blackstone's Commentaries, appear therein. Enumeration of other works must be omitted here. The collection of trials, civil and criminal, including complete sets of the Old Bailey Sessions Papers, and the Central Criminal Court Reports, 1729 to date; the early printed year books of reports and the Peerage Claims, are worthy of careful examination. Attention is called to a set of the Local and Personal Acts of Great Britain, from 1817 to 1906; also to a collection of Private Acts, 1831 to 1906. Both of these collections are complete for the periods covered.

The present catalogue has been prepared under the direction and supervision of the Assistant Librarian. The progress of the work has been much delayed, owing to various changes in the catalogue staff, and a long illness of an important assistant.

EXPLANATIONS

In this catalogue each work is entered under the surname of the author, when ascertained.

Anonymous works (except those relating to a person, city or other clearly defined subject) are entered under the first word of the title not an article or a preposition; but, if the initials or any part of the author's name appear, the entry is made under these also. A pseudonymous work is entered under the pseudonym as well as under the title, if the author's real name is not known ; if the author's real name is known, a reference is made to it from the pseudonym.

In authors' names not given in full on the title-page, the portion supplied is enclosed in brackets. Words added to the title are enclosed in brackets.

Lists of contents have been given to books containing the works of several authors when it was deemed advisable to do so. Works of this class have also been analyzed.
